Devising Credible Plots and Characters with John Harman (CWJH1)

All John's workshops focus on technique, with plenty of handouts and writing exercises for participants. He uses story-telling examples from popular novels and movies. His courses focus on the practical – on the proven techniques of story construction using examples from published authors.

John Harman

John has written for a living all his working life; first in advertising and then for many years as a journalist in the UK and America, finally finishing up on London's famous Fleet Street. Later he became the co-owner of a small film production company, where he wrote countless documentary, training and corporate film scripts. For the past twenty-five years, John has earned a living as a full-time writer and has published novels; non-fiction tv scripts and ghost stories.
