Writing About The Past: Historical Fiction, Biography, Memoir, Family History And Other Genres with Ian Reid (HFIR1)

This practical interactive session is intended for beginners and experienced writers alike. It will engage with questions such as the following:

- What different forms of fiction or non-fiction can historical writing take, and how important are the distinctions between them?
- What principles apply to your writing regardless of its genre or mix of genres?
- What should your project's starting-point be, and how do you develop the initial idea into a fully-fledged narrative?
- What kinds of research will you need to undertake?
